

Theater Mania

The Colorado Catechism

By Michael Toscano

Journeyman Theater Ensemble, true to its name, is traveling from downtown out to the Clark Street Playhouse in Arlington for The Colorado Catechism, Vincent J. Cardinal's comedy about a mismatched couple who meet in rehab. He is a denizen of the New York arts scene, and she is a Midwestern divorced mom involved in a custody battle. Journeyman is a Christian-centered theater company, but Founder and Artistic Director Deborah Kirby, who plays Donna, the female lead, promises a play full of laughs and no preaching as the couple try to support each other with sometimes disastrous results. The Colorado Catechism runs April 20 to May 21.
